If any of the non-maintenance repairs are collated and action taken when patterns repeat.
e.g., 'unblock chute in floor block x floor x. If not why not?

All repairs that are carried out are recorded against the block. There is not a systematic procedure in place to identify patterns. However, where it is identified that there are specific repair jobs being repeatedly raised for the same issue, officers may recommend actions such as an item to be replaced rather than repaired for example.

Information such as performance of lifts or surveys carried out is used to inform investment programmes.
