Good evening Keith,

I hope you're keeping well.

I wanted to get in touch following my communication with [REDACTED] earlier today regarding the recent letter. I completely understand the importance of keeping everyone aligned, and I wanted to reassure you that I'm already chasing the tenant for the necessary information. I'll make it a priority to provide a clear update by Friday at the latest.

In the meantime, it would be great to catch up more broadly on the project. Would you have some availability during the day for a quick Teams call? It would be useful to review progress, discuss any outstanding matters, and ensure that everything is moving forward smoothly and in line with expectations. I'm happy to work around your schedule if there's a particular time that suits you best.

Please rest assured that we are fully committed to getting this matter resolved before any further warrant applications are made. The landlord is equally determined to ensure that this iconic project is delivered collaboratively, transparently, and with the continued involvement of all key stakeholders - including yourselves as the Building Control Authority.

I genuinely appreciate your support and partnership throughout this process. It's a complex project, but one we're all invested in seeing through successfully, and I'm confident that with open communication and cooperation, we'll achieve the best outcome.

I look forward to hearing from you and hopefully catching up soon.

Best wishes
